

MOCSA is proud to announce our keynote speaker for the 2018 Community Luncheon, Mira Sorvino. Mira is an Academy Award-winning actress, documentary filmmaker, United Nations Goodwill Ambassador and a passionate voice for victims of social injustice.

As one of the earliest and most prominent women in Hollywood to confront Weinstein's years of predatory behavior, Sorvino helped empower a cascade of over 90 silence breakers to come forward.

"At the time I don't think I even knew that what happened — him using business-related situations to try and press himself sexually on a young woman in his employ — qualified as sexual harassment. But as a woman who routinely advocates for women and girls who have been victimized in my role as Goodwill Ambassador with the United Nations, and as a mother of two daughters, I could no longer remain silent."

Mira has had a long history of human rights advocacy linking #MeToo to the larger struggle of women worldwide and her longtime work fighting human trafficking. Sorvino shares what all men and women can do to end sexual violence.

Her highly positive and solutions-based talk does not dwell long on the horrors of victimization. Her inspiring point of view empowers all of us to stand up, speak out and forever end this ages-old injustice against victims of sexual violence.
