ABOUT CPTED

Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design or CPTED is a tool to empower neighbors to improve their communities by making changes to shared spaces (added street lights, sidewalks, neighborhood clean-ups, etc.). These changes impact how people behave in those spaces, reduce crime and violence, and bring neighbors together. Neighborhoods whose residents are accountable to and care about each other are the neighborhoods that thrive.

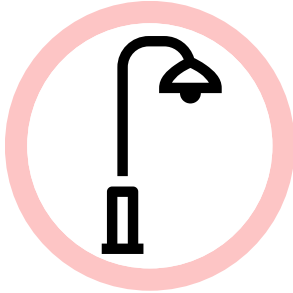

DOES CPTED REDUCE CRIME AND VIOLENCE?

Though behavior change and neighborhood connection can be difficult to measure, research shows CPTED-related projects can have positive impacts like reduced crime and violence rates and an increased perception of safety. These strategies have helped neighbors internationally and here in the US to create communities where people from different backgrounds feel welcome and safe.

WHO IS THIS TOOLKIT FOR?

This toolkit is for any group or individual wanting to improve the places they live, work, and play. Along with a thorough explanation of CPTED, it provides hands-on ways residents can work together to help address problems in their neighborhoods in ways that make them safer and more connected.

WHAT ARE CPTED PRINCIPLES?

CAN I SEE OTHERS? CAN OTHERS SEE ME?

People feel safe in areas where it is easy to see or be seen by others, like a block where neighbors use their front yards and porches. Issues like over-grown shrubs, bad lighting, or high walls or privacy fences make it difficult to see and discourage residents from enjoying their neighborhood, which can create opportunities for unsafe or violent behavior.

DO I KNOW WHERE TO GO?

People feel more secure when they know how to get around their neighborhood and find where to go. Things like clearly marked entrances and exits or signs that guide visitors to their destinations make it easier to enjoy public spaces and help everyone understand what those spaces are used for.

WHAT IS THIS SPACE FOR?

When a space is being used for what it is meant for, it feels safer. An example is when public parks and playgrounds feel safe and welcoming for kids and families, and the boundaries between public property and private properties are clearly marked.

WHAT ARE CPTED PRINCIPLES?

IS THIS SPACE MAINTAINED?

People are less likely to engage in unsafe behavior in places where it is clear that someone cares about the space. Things like mowed lawns, cleaning up graffiti as soon as it happens, and securing vacant buildings make it clear that residents care about their neighborhood and are paying attention to what happens there.

IS MY NEIGHBORHOOD CONNECTED?

CPTED ideas are more than physical changes; they include social programs that encourage connection among neighbors. A connected community values diversity, shares a sense of belonging, and works to develop positive relationships among people from different backgrounds.

IS THERE A SENSE OF COMMUNITY?

A strong sense of community can encourage positive outlooks and behaviors. This is created when residents set up and participate in festivals, cultural events, neighborhood cleanups, youth groups, etc.
